We wonder how many of the hundreds of visitors to the open house of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital realize the debt that this area owes to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. P. Coleman.

Many citizens contributes money. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman contributed over a million dollars and millions more in personal work.

We appreciate them for their efforts for the Sikeston area health.

LABOR LAW REFORM

In recent months, more and more members of Congress are becoming aware of the urgent need for labor law reform and are in the mood to do something about it.

Numerous strikes of private and public nature have angered the majority of American people and it is evident that the extreme pro-union bias of the National Labor Relations Board is such that no employer can expect a fair or impartial hearing from this agency. In fact, the agency is used by the unions as an instrument to harass employers and keep them tied up in expensive litigation. Proposals to abolish the Labor Board in its entirety are now getting serious attention, according to reports from Washington.

Frankly, we don't agree with bills that propose to create a labor court as a substitute for the board. This would make matters worse because the pro-union Board members would probably end up as judges of the Labor Court and would continue their union bias. A much better approach would be to turn jurisdiction of unfair labor practice cases to the existing federal district courts. Long-established judicial rules of practice would take the place of Labor Board policies which are made up as they go along. It is evident that many Senators and Congressmen view this as the soundest approach,

In response to increasing criticism of the NLRB, a review of the policies and decisions of the Board has begun this month by the Senate Sub-Committee on Separation of Powers, under the chairmanship of Sen. Sam Ervin (N.C.). Other members of this sub-committee are McClellan (Ark.), Burdick (N. D.), Dirksen (Ill.), and Hruska (Neb.). Evidence is being presented as to how the Labor Board has distorted and disregarded the intent of the Taft-Hartley Act and has substituted its own policies and ideas for those expressly written into the law

Furthermore, there also will be made an effort to show Congress the expenditures of union funds for political activities. Although the Taft-Hartley Act made it a criminal offense for labor unions to columnist might never know if make political contributions or otherwise spend he didn't open his mail: their members' dues money in connection with Federal elections, the law is completely ignored kids who have the mumps. The high positioned transfers of Robert McNamara and Gen. William Westmoreland may be essentially political.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has been careful in announcing both moves to emphasize that no change in war strategy was involved.

Of course, he couldn't be expected to publicly announce a change in strategy. This would give the Viet Cong more comfort and assistance than they have any right to expect.

President Johnson has been steadfast in his pursuit of a military victory in Vietnam. He might have become more popular with Americans if he had not been.

But he has been consistent in fighting the war. No reasonable person should expect him to let down in the effort or fail to support this country's fighting men over there.

That there can be no abrupt change in strategy would be a fair assumption.

The political aspects are more obvious.

McNamara and Westmoreland have been the principal architects and executioners of the Vietnam war policy.

While they unquestionably acted on orders of the commander in chief, they have both been associated with optimistic war forecasts that did not materialize.

It may be that there are no human beings that could have done better under the circumstances. That is beside the point.

Victory in Vietnam -- either military or political -- appears to be more remote today than at any time in the recent past despite the most optimistic appraisals of our military successes. The American people are bound to hold Mc-Namara and Westmoreland to account for repeatedly making forecasts of the war outcome which failed to occur.

President Johnson might be expected to have smoother sailing in a presidential election year if new persons occupied the positions of secretary of the defense and commander of the United States forces in Vietnam.

The new officials cannot be blamed for past failures and they cannot be identified so closely with them. A fresh approach may have merit anyway.

So it was good political strategy if not a stroke of military genuis that has shifted McNamara to president of the World Bank and will place Westmoreland in the Pentagon position as Army chief of staff.

However, the efforts of national industries cannot be effective unless the local retailer takes a major share of the responsibility.

The large manufacturer begins the selling process through national advertising, but local retail advertising must finally place products in the hands of the consumers.

LABOR LAW REFORM

In recent months, more and more members of Congress are becoming aware of the urgent need for labor law reform and are in the mood to do something about it.

Numerous strikes of private and public nature have angered the majority of American people and it is evident that the extreme pro-union bias of the National Labor Relations Board is such that no employer can expect a fair or impartial hearing from this agency. In fact, the agency is used by the unions as an instrument to harassemployers and keep them tied up in expensive litigation. Proposals to abolish the Labor Board in its entirety are now getting serious attention, according to reports from Washington. Frankly, we don't agree with bills that propose to create a labor court as a substitute for the board. This would make matters worse because the pro-union Board members would probably end up as judges of the Labor Court and would continue their union bias. A much better approach would be to turn jurisdiction of unfair labor practice cases to the existing federal district courts. Long-established judicial rules of practice would take the place of Labor Board policies which are made up as they go along. It is evident that many Senators and Congressmen view this as the soundest approach,

In response to increasing criticism of the NLRB, a review of the policies and decisions of the Board has begun this month by the Senate Sub-Committee on Separation of Powers, under the chairmanship of Sen. Sam Ervin (N.C.). Other members of this sub-committee are McClellan (Ark.), Burdick (N. D.), Dirksen (Ill.), and Hruska (Neb.). Evidence is being presented as to how the Labor Board has distorted and disregarded the intent of the Taft-Hartley Act and has substituted its own policies and ideas for those expressly written into the law

Furthermore, there also will be made an effort to show Congress the expenditures of union funds for political activities. Although the Taft-Hartley Act made it a criminal offense for labor unions to columnist might never know if make political contributions or otherwise spend he didn't open his mail: their members' dues money in connection with Federal elections, the law is completely ignored kids who have the mumps. The high positioned transfers of Robert McNamara and Gen. William Westmoreland may be essentially political.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has been careful in announcing both moves to emphasize that no change in war strategy was involved.

Of course, he couldn't be expected to publicly announce a change in strategy. This would give the Viet Cong more comfort and assistance than they have any right to expect.

President Johnson has been steadfast in his pursuit of a military victory in Vietnam. He might have become more popular with Americans if he had not been.

But he has been consistent in fighting the war. No reasonable person should expect him to let down in the effort or fail to support this country's fighting men over there.

That there can be no abrupt change in strategy would be a fair assumption.

The political aspects are more obvious.

McNamara and Westmoreland have been the principal architects and executioners of the Vietnam war policy.

While they unquestionably acted on orders of the commander in chief, they have both been associated with optimistic war forecasts that did not materialize.

It may be that there are no human beings that could have done better under the circumstances. That is beside the point.

Victory in Vietnam -- either military or political -- appears to be more remote today than at any time in the recent past despite the most optimistic appraisals of our military successes. The American people are bound to hold Mc-

Namara and Westmoreland to account for repeatedly making forecasts of the war outcome which failed to occur.

President Johnson might be expected to have smoother sailing in a presidential election year if new persons occupied the positions of secretary of the defense and commander of the United States forces in Vietnam.

The new officials cannot be blamed for past failures and they cannot be identified so closely with them. A fresh approach may have merit

So it was good political strategy if not a stroke Why we like Robert Kennedy. He is the man who of military genuis that has shifted McNamara to president of the World Bank and will place Westmoreland in the Pentagon position as Army chief of staff.

-Hawks Fight Back Lou Brock: Star Fielder And His Own Worst Critic

By MURRAY OLDERMAN NEA Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(NEA)—Lou Brock is still wait-

Lou is the leftfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the baseball world. And none has been more important to that success than the streamlined slugger ning Sunday and edged the delivering the tie-breaking run Atlanta rookie Ron Reed scate Last summer he hit 21 homers and drove in 76 runs from Houston Astros 3-2, completing with a pinch double. Mickey tered four hits through seven in his leadoff spot, and then in the World Series he batted .414 with a hot hand. He reeled off available. an 11-game exhibition sweep Stanley hit a three-run homer nings and reliever Claude Ray- and stole seven bases in spectacular style. In his seventh six straight points to put the over National League opposi. and Willie Horton a solo blast mond completed a seven-hit, 2-0 major league season, at the age of 28, he's being paid in style.

But there is no smugness in Lou Brock. He sits on one of an over-all record of 15-5— best mer gave the Twins a 3-2 nod blanked twice in a row and six those steamer trunks that spill over the Cardinal dressing room at Al Lang Field, and he mulls the question somberly: pered Ken Holtzman for six Is he getting the most of his natural talent?

The Angels spotted Cleveland runs in five innings and ripped "I could say no," he answers, "and firmly believe it. Peothe winning run on one of three two runs in the top of the 11th, the Chicago Cubs 9-2 while the ple think otherwise. An individual has to be his worst critic."
errors committed by Hector then rallied in the bottom of the White Sox Bs edged Oakland 4-3 An edge of dissatisfaction from last season knifes at him.

In the last game of the season, at Atlanta, in the last inning. with two out, Lou was waiting in the on-deck circle. The Cardinals, though handily ahead 5-2, had sent Bobby Tolan up to pinch hit for the pitcher.

'I needed three hits that day to bat .300," recounts Lou. "I already had two-for-four, but I'd struck out my last time up. Then Bobby made out, and I lost my last chance. I batted

Or 6/10,000ths of a percentile from his objective.

There should be some solace from the fact that he led the ridge? National League in stolen bases for the second straight year But then you have to hear Lou

I don't think right now is the right time for stealing south a "partridge." bases," he shrugs, "because baseball is saturated-guys like Maury Wills, Luis Aparicio, Tommy Harper-so many it eliminates the surprise. The catchers, 95 per cent of 'em, always make the perfect throw. The pitchers are more conscious of movement on the mound

'Besides, you can't steal till you get on first."

And in Lou's case, that can be a problem. He seldom walks, and the records show that 30 per cent of his hits are for extra bases. That puts him automatically beyond first.

So he insists, "My greatest satisfaction in baseball is hitting. And it's tough nowadays to hit for average, especially in the leadoff spot like me. Matty Alou of the Pirates did it, but he faces very few lefthand pitchers. He hits 90 per cent of his balls on the ground; 90 per cent of mine are in the air.'

Lou has one asset that dilutes all the problems. "I have a habit," he admits, "of being able to get on base, whether it's by a hit or an error.

In the World Series against the Red Sox, he reached base almost 50 per cent of the time, which, coupled with his record seven stolen bases, emphasized his ascendancy to star status.

He sits on one of an over-all record of 15-5— best mer gave the Twins a 3-2 nod blanked twice in a row and six those steamer trunks that spill over the Cardinal dressing room at Al Lang Field, and he mulls the question somberly:

Is he getting the most of his natural talent "I could say no," he answers, "and firmly believe it. Peothe winning run on one of three two runs in the top of the 11th, the Chicago Cubs 9-2 while the ple think otherwise. An individual has to be his worst critic." errors committed by Hector then rallied in the bottom of the White Sox Bs edged Oakland 4-3 An edge of dissatisfaction from last season knifes at him.

In the last game of the season, at Atlanta, in the last inning. with two out, Lou was waiting in the on-deck circle. The Cardinals, though handily ahead 5-2, had sent Bobby Tolan up to pinch hit for the pitcher.

"I needed three hits that day to bat .300," recounts Lou. "I already had two-for-four, but I'd struck out my last time up. Then Bobby made out, and I lost my last chance. I batted 299 point 4.

Or 6/10,000ths of a percentile from his objective.

There should be some solace from the fact that he led the ridge? National League in stolen bases for the second straight year. But then you have to hear Lou.

'I don't think right now is the right time for stealing bases." he shrugs, "because baseball is saturated—guys like Maury Wills, Luis Aparicio, Tommy Harper-so many it eliminates the surprise. The catchers, 95 per cent of 'em, always make the perfect throw. The pitchers are more conscious of movement on the mound.

'Besides, you can't steal till you get on first."

And in Lou's case, that can be a problem. He seldom walks, and the records show that 30 per cent of his hits are for extra bases. That puts him automatically beyond first.

So he insists, "My greatest satisfaction in baseball is hitting. And it's tough nowadays to hit for average, especially in the leadoff spot like me. Matty Alou of the Pirates did it, but he faces very few lefthand pitchers. He hits 90 per cent of his balls on the ground; 90 per cent of mine are in the air.

Lou has one asset that dilutes all the problems. "I have a habit," he admits, "of being able to get on base.

whether it's by a hit or an error. In the World Series against the Red Sox, he reached base almost 50 per cent of the time, which, coupled with his record seven stolen bases, emphasized his ascendancy to star status.

Tonkin Resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) -Eighty - eight House members who voted for the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution are among the 147 now calling for either repeal or review of that historic measure. The resolution, passed in August 1964 by the House by vote of 416 to 0, authorized the Presdent "to take all necessary steps, including the use of armed force" to cope with Communist aggression in Southeast Asia. The approval followed reports ed attacks on U.S. naval vessels in the Gulf of Tonkin by North Vietnamese torpedo boats.

Others seeking either repeal or review include Garner B. Shriver, R.Kan., and Thomas B. Curtis, R.Mo.

No longer does chidren's Easter finery consist of the tried and true pink and blue shades. Even classic styling takes a back seat to avantgarde fashion looks. And color has taken on new importance. Fabrics have more diversity and prints are works of art.

The clear brights and frosted pastels that will turn up in the line of March on Easter Sunday will rival mom's best efforts with the dyed eggs in the Easter basket. And for the sophisticated small-fry there are the neutrals-brown with white and natural with navy.

The romantic mood in this season's fashions filters down to the very young in fabric and styling.

Wispy polyester, cotton voile, dotted Swiss and airy embroidery turn up in fitted shapes, belted in chains, beads or bright patent. And ruffles add a pretty look at sleeves, neck or hem.

Ensembles are still in the fashion spotlight for Eastercoats and dresses and jacket dresses. And there are coats

We wonder how many of the hundreds of visitors to the open house of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital realize the debt that this area owes to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. P. Coleman.

Many citizens contributes money. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman contributed over a million dollars and millions more in personal work.

We appreciate them for their efforts for the Sikeston area health.

LABOR LAW REFORM

In recent months, more and more members of Congress are becoming aware of the urgent need for labor law reform and are in the mood to do something about it.

Numerous strikes of private and public nature have angered the majority of American people and it is evident that the extreme pro-union bias of the National Labor Relations Board is such that no employer can expect a fair or impartial hearing from this agency. In fact, the agency is used by the unions as an instrument to harassemployers and keep them tied up in expensive litigation. Proposals to abolish the Labor Board in its entirety are now getting serious attention, according to reports from Washington.

Frankly, we don't agree with bills that propose to create a labor court as a substitute for the board. This would make matters worse because the pro-union Board members would probably end up as judges of the Labor Court and would continue their union bias. A much better approach would be to turn jurisdiction of unfair labor practice cases to the existing federal district courts. Long-established judicial rules of practice would take the place of Labor Board policies which are made up as they go along. It is evident that many Senators and Congressmen view this as the soundest approach,

In response to increasing criticism of the NLRB, a review of the policies and decisions of the Board has begun this month by the Senate Sub-Committee on Separation of Powers, under the chairmanship of Sen. Sam Ervin (N.C.). Other members of this sub-committee are McClellan (Ark.), Burdick (N. D.), Dirksen (Ill.), and Hruska (Neb.). Evidence is being presented as to how the Labor Board has distorted and disregarded the intent of the Taft-Hartley Act and has substituted its own policies and ideas for those expressly written into the law by Congress.

Furthermore, there also will be made an effort to show Congress the expenditures of union funds for political activities. Although the Taft-Hartley Act made it a criminal offense for labor unions to columnist might never know if make political contributions or otherwise spend he didn't open his mail: their members' dues money in connection with pooch stray near neighborhood Federal elections, the law is completely ignored kids who have the mumps. The high positioned transfers of Robert McNamara and Gen. William Westmoreland may be essentially political.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has been careful in announcing both moves to emphasize that no change in war strategy was involved.

Of course, he couldn't be expected to publicly announce a change in strategy. This would give the Viet Cong more comfort and assistance than they have any right to expect.

President Johnson has been steadfast in his pursuit of a military victory in Vietnam. He might have become more popular with Americans if he had not been.

But he has been consistent in fighting the war. No reasonable person should expect him to let down in the effort or fail to support this country's fighting men over there.

That there can be no abrupt change in strategy would be a fair assumption.

The political aspects are more obvious.

McNamara and Westmoreland have been the principal architects and executioners of the Vietnam war policy.

While they unquestionably acted on orders of the commander in chief, they have both been associated with optimistic war forecasts that did not

It may be that there are no human beings that could have done better under the circumstances. That is beside the point.

Victory in Vietnam -- either military or political -- appears to be more remote today than at any time in the recent past despite the most optimistic appraisals of our military successes.

The American people are bound to hold Mc-Namara and Westmoreland to account for repeatedly making forecasts of the war outcome which failed to occur.

President Johnson might be expected to have smoother sailing in a presidential election year if new persons occupied the positions of secretary of the defense and commander of the United States forces in Vietnam.

The new officials cannot be blamed for past failures and they cannot be identified so closely with them. A fresh approach may have merit

So it was good political strategy if not a stroke of military genuis that has shifted McNamara to president of the World Bank and will place Westmoreland in the Pentagon position as Army chief Advertising budgets of national manufacturers in the United States have been increased for 1967.

The increase is a reflection of evidence that there is no real basis for fear of a serious depression or uncontrolled inflation. It is also an investment in what could be a resurgent boom. It is based on the knowledge that the American consumer is in a better buying position than at any time in history.

While buying power has increased to an all-time high, and unemployment reached an all-time low, the productive capacity of American industry is things of the mind. However, the efforts of national industries cannot be effective unless the local retailer takes a major share of the responsibility.

The large manufacturer begins the selling process through national advertising, but local retail advertising must finally place products in the hands of the consumers.

In the last game of the season, at Atlanta, in the last inning, with two out, Lou was waiting in the on-deck circle. The Cardinals, though handily ahead 5-2, had sent Bobby Tolan up to pinch hit for the pitcher.

"I needed three hits that day to bat .300," recounts Lou. "I already had two-for-four, but I'd struck out my last time up. Then Bobby made out, and I lost my last chance. I batted National League in stolen bases for the second straight year. But then you have to hear Lou.

"I don't think right now is the right time for stealing bases," he shrugs, "because baseball is saturated—guys like Maury Wills, Luis Aparicio, Tommy Harper-so many it eliminates the surprise. The catchers, 95 per cent of 'em, always make the perfect throw. The pitchers are more conscious of novement on the mound

And in Lou's case, that can be a problem. He seldom walks, and the records show that 30 per cent of his hits are for extra bases. That puts him automatically beyond first.

So he insists, "My greatest satisfaction in baseball is hitting. And it's tough nowadays to hit for average, especially in the leadoff spot like me. Matty Alou of the Pirates did it, but he faces very few lefthand pitchers. He hits 90 per cent of his balls on the ground: 90 per cent of mine are in the air. Lou has one asset that dilutes all the problems.

"I have a habit," he admits, "of being able to get on base. whether it's by a hit or an error.

Second Thoughts on Tonkin Resolution

measure.

The resolution, passed in August 1964 by the House by vote of 416 to 0, authorized the Presedent "to take all necessary steps, including the use of armed force" to cope with Communist aggression in Southeast

The approval followed reported attacks on U.S. naval vesesels in the Gulf of Tonkin by North Vietnamese torpedo boats.

Others seeking either repeal or review include Garner B. Shriver, R.Kan., and Thomas B.

You will know the truth, and the truth will make you free.—(John 8:32).

When we progress along the path of faith, we feel that we are finding our true capacity for freedom of expression. Let us take the idea that with the freedom of the Spirit, we can make it our very own. As we use this prayer, we will not feel compelled to do things we no longer want to do. We have the courage, fortitude, the patience and the ability to say no to that which we no longer want and yes to that which we do want.

One of the joys of Wide-Tracking in a Pontiac is that it doesn't cost any more than ordinary driving. And with 35 kinds of Pontiacs, you can choose your way of Wide-Tracking. Our five Firebirds begin with a unique 175-hp Overhead Cam six and escalate to the 400 cubic inch Firebird 400. And, because they're Pontiacs, Firebirds cost less than you think. So think. The drive is on. See your Pontiac dealer. He's out to smash sales records for the 7th straight year!

No longer does chidren's Easter finery consist of the tried and true pink and blue shades. Even classic styling takes a back seat to avantgarde fashion looks. And color has taken on new importance. Fabrics have more diversity and prints are works of art.

The clear brights and frosted pastels that will turn up in the line of March on Easter Sunday will rival mom's best efforts with the dyed eggs in the Easter basket. And for the sophisticated small-fry there are the neutrals-brown with white and natural with navy.

The romantic mood in this season's fashions filters down to the very young in fabric and styling.

Wispy polyester, cotton voile, dotted Swiss and airy embroidery turn up in fitted shapes, belted in chains, beads or bright patent. And ruffles add a pretty look at sleeves, neck or hem.
